

The FCC should implement a telephone privacy law as strict as Indiana. If they don't then they should leave Indiana's alone. The quality of our home life is much better since we don't have all the annoying solicitor calls. They would even call back after we told them not to.